THE MAGDALEN.

BY KATE SAXON. Only a Magdalen found in the river, body's sister, nobody's child, Nobody's heart to throb and quiver, Nobody's lips to pale and shiver. Only a Magdalen found in the river, Tossed on the drift of the incoming tide

Beautiful, sinful piece of humanity, Was there no spot on the earth's

No couch lest the ouze and drift of the river, No song but its sobbing to hall you to rest? Out from the glow of the gas-lighted city, No loving voice called 'mid the rush a Only the voice of the river kept calling.

Boatmen, like shadows, rock by on the river

. Up from the gloom of its wave-beaten sho

A shivering piece of humanity eronching. Nerveless white hands on the sin-burthene Damb with the woo of life's cruel mystery, The flerce, bitter,aching and tortured unrest,

Moaning, despairing, her wan lips a-quiver,

Over the water eathedral bells tolling, Was it a dirge for her unshriven sins, Or a prayer for the soul of the Magdale
